EVANSVILLE LADS TO BE HERE SATURDAY

Cut Off City Juniors Plan Trip.—Seniors Play at Evansville Friday Night.

After a conference yesterday between Physical Director Hartwell of the local Y. M. C. A. and Secretary Charles Atkinson of the Evansville Association, it was decided that the Evansville Sub-Juniors and A Juniors, numbering about twenty-five in all, will make the trip to Janesville Saturday morning for a visit with the Juniors of this city. The morning will be spent in class work and games in which both teams will take part and a general good time is planned for the visitors. The B Juniors will have their class Saturday afternoon instead of in the morning so that the youngsters can have the gymnasium to entertain their visitors in.

On Friday night the first team leaves for Evansville to play the "V" team of that city, which was so badly defeated when they played here the first part of the season. Brown, Koch, Wilson, Scott, McDonald and Stutter will accompany the team which will play there Friday night and return here Saturday morning.

Physical Director Hartwell has arranged a game for the first team with the Washington Athletic Alumni of the University of Wisconsin which so far this season, has not been defeated. This is a very fast team and promises to put up a hard game against the local boys. It will probably be the hardest game of the season for them and they are planning to put up the fight of their lives if necessary to defeat the Alumni.

STOUGHTON SKI-FEST PROVED BIG EVENT

Large Crowd Witnessed Some of Best Jumping Ever Made in America Yesterday—Many Good Records.

[Special to the Gazette.]

Stoughton, Wis., Jan. 25.—Stoughton's greatest gain day of her history passed away yesterday when she celebrated the holding of the greatest ski tournament ever staged in America. Sixty-five of the most expert ski performers of the United States competed only to break the hill record of 135 feet, with a 141 foot jump, and come within nine feet of the American long-distance record, and within twenty-two feet of the world's record. The yearling down to the base of the snow on the incline proved machine of longer jumps during the professional contest which closed the most. Over 5,000 people, including state officers and officers of the National Ski Association, saw the skiffest, in which the longest jumps of the season were scored. The winning score of 302½ points was one of the largest scores ever recorded in America.

Sigurd Hanson, Fergus Falls, Minn., and Carl Solberg, St. Paul, international champion of Norway, and France, won all three events respectively in the professional and amateur contests. Hanson's jumps of 132 and 135 feet won him the professional regular contest. His 141 foot leap took the longest jump event, and also won for him the most graceful slide event. He won seventy dollars for his three jumps.

Carl Solberg won the amateur class contest with jumps of 119 and 122 feet, scoring 275½ points. His leap of 127 feet won the amateur longest jump event. Solberg is one of the most perfect "driftmen" in the world.

Beloit skiers failed to make long jumps in the amateur class, but they also failed to suffer falls in landing, a misfortune which bothered most of the best skiers. Alfred Kosman went 92 and 101 feet, John Gustafson jumped 99 and 109 feet, and Elmer Hauke leaped 75 and 99 feet.

Everyone of the thousands of spectators stood agape as the one-armed David Lind of Ishpeming, Mich., mounted the 138 foot high incline to attempt a leap. With his arm swinging wildly after he shot into the air at a rate of not less than ninety miles an hour, Lind made a remarkable landing, kept his balance well, and scored a perfect run. Twice he went over the terrible ordeal with tremendous success in 100 and 104 foot leaps.

Melvin Hendrickson, Eau Claire, 17 year old wonder, jumped 121 feet and fell. On his second leap he scored 111 feet and stood. In the longest standing jump event he scored 127 feet but fell.

Two special trains carrying nine coaches each made trips from Madison and return.

The official returns were found to tally exactly with those published. The chairman present were: Evans, Shurtliff, Buchholz, Sheridan, Connell, and Hall.

BOY COASTING STRUCK BY INTERURBAN CAR

David Bowen, Eleven Years Old, Has Close Call and Sustained Severe Injuries in Accident This Noon.

David Bowen, the eleven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey Bowen, residing at 267 North High street, was struck by the incoming interurban freight car at noon today, at the intersection of Main street and St. Lawrence avenue, as he was crossing the tracks in front of the car on his sled. He was thrown some distance by the impact, but did not get under the wheels.

The car was stopped within a few yards of the place, where he was struck and men who witnessed the accident, carried him into the office of Dr. Edmund F. Woods, where he was given the best attention possible until the arrival of the ambulance a few minutes later.

The identity of the boy was not discovered until after he was conveyed to Mercy Hospital. His mother did not miss him until after twelve o'clock as he had not come home from school. The report of an unknown boy having hurt by a car passed rapidly and many anxious parents telephoned hither and thither to find out if he was one of their own children.

The extent of the injuries sustained by the Bowen boy has not been determined, but he was badly bruised around the head and feet and is suffering much pain.

The place where the accident happened is a very dangerous one for boys to coast. The stone wall which flanks the inside of the walk at the corner of St. Lawrence avenue and South Main street prevents coasters from seeing cars approach from the south and also makes it impossible for the motorman to see sleds approach in time to bring the car to a stop. This is especially true when the boys lie at full length on the sled and the motorman on the noon freight car stated that he just missed striking another sled as it crossed the tracks.

Court street is an equally unsafe coasting place for similar reasons, and several accidents have been narrowly averted. Drivers of vehicles, as well as motormen, are anxious to have coasting prohibited on the streets named, and parents solicitous for the safety of their children should forbid them to use their sleds on them.

THEFT OF WATCH MONTH AGO JUST DISCOVERED

Juvenile Offender Apprehended After Disposing of It to Jeweler Yesterday—Is Not Prosecuted.

The theft of a watch a month ago was discovered for the first time yesterday when the juvenile possessor attempted to dispose of it at Olin & Olson's jewelry store for the sum of twenty-five cents. The jeweler recognized the watch as belonging to Mrs. J. Gherke, residing on Sharon street. He notified her of the fact and asked her to come to the store. She had not missed the watch but was able to identify the boy from the description given her. No formal complaint was made against him but he was given a severe reprimand by Judge Filstead this morning and allowed to go on his promise to maintain good behavior. He admitted the theft but would not explain his action.

WHAT THEY SAY.

It is interesting to note what the leading newspapers of the state have to say relative to the decision of Janesville on Tuesday to be governed by the commission form of government. The Oshkosh Northwestern handles the matter in the following manner:

"Two more Wisconsin cities have joined the list of those which have adopted the commission plan of municipal government. Janesville and Superior both voted on this question yesterday, the commission plan winning in Janesville by a majority of 204, and in Superior by a majority of 106. In both places a campaign of opposition was vigorously waged, backed by the same interests which usually object to making this change. Friends of the movement were also active in both places, however, and they gained their point by hard and persistent work to convince a majority of the voters that the commission plan is something actually better than the old system of ward aldermen and factional politics in municipal affairs."

"A dozen, or more, other cities of the state are now considering this same change, several of them, including Madison, having advanced the question to a point where dates have been set for special elections to give the voters a chance to express themselves. It is conceded that the examples of Janesville and Superior, in addition to the recent favorable action taken by the voters of Oshkosh, will materially influence sentiment in these other places where the change is under contemplation. In fact, it is fairly certain that before the close of the present year there will be a very respectable list of Wisconsin cities which have changed over to the commission plan."

"The prospect of this quite general change to the commission system by Wisconsin cities is gratifying for more than one reason. In the first place it shows that the pushing, progressive citizens of this state are alert and eager in their desire to improve the conditions of city government and get away from errors and abuses which have existed in the past. It also shows that the people of this state are broad-minded and liberal enough to intelligently seek reforms that promise betterment of conditions, regardless of the clamor of selfish interests and the promptings of partisan politics and partisan affiliations. Best of all, it shows that the spirit of reform and improvement is not confined to any particular locality or section of the state, but permeates Wisconsin people everywhere. The spirit of progress has become a dominating feature of the citizenship of Wisconsin. In fact, giving every promise that this state can be depended on to hold and maintain the prestige it has gained as one of the best governed states in the union, both with respect to purely local affairs and the affairs of the state as a whole."

The Beloit Free Press says: Janesville and Superior have voted in favor of a commission form of city government. It was a bitter contest at Janesville, but the majority in favor of the new order of things is sufficient to show that the citizens of our neighboring city are in earnest in the important question in hand. The fact that cities are adopting the commission form of government shows a distrust of the aldermanic system, and in these days of new things in politics other cities will experiment with the commission form of municipal management. It has been demonstrated that ideal conditions obtain in commission cities; it will take years of trial of the plan to prove it. The cities adopting the commission form should give it a fair trial through patience and fairness to those bearing the burden of government. All cities, even well-regulated Beloit, should follow the operation of the new plan at Janesville with keen interest. If the new plan really offers improved methods of doing the city's business, let us learn of it and profit thereby."

The Beloit Daily News is even more fulsome in its approval:

"We have been pretty consistent boosters for Beloit. We have faith in this city. We believe in its future, partly because we know of its glorious past, partly because of its prosperous present."

But we must admit that Janesville has beaten us out in at least one particular. In voting yesterday to adopt the commission form of government the Bower City has shown herself more progressive than we can boast of being."

"Two years ago Janesville voted not to adopt the new style of municipal rule. Just why this should have thrown a wet blanket over Beloit's ambitions to adopt it we are not sure, but apparently we dismissed all thought of making this change after that. The way was surely left open to us then to get in ahead of our neighbor. We have neglected the opportunity. Our neighbor has gotten in ahead of us."

But it will be no disgrace if we follow in the footsteps of Janesville. Indeed, we might do far worse than to copy the example thus set for us. Progressive cities everywhere are adopting the commission form. There is nothing too good for Beloit. If it is a good thing to rather cities, why shouldn't we have it."

Up in Madison they are having a hard fight for and against it. Even more bitter than was conducted here in Janesville. The Madison Journal prints the following:

"Janesville and Superior have cast upon the dump the out-worn, out-grown and inadequate common council system and have voted in the commission plan. The commission plan, by the way, is a misnomer. The administrative body under this form of government is not a commission at all, but a board of trustees or a board of directors elected by all the people. Janesville and Superior have joined the avalanche of cities that are rushing to a sane and sensible business administration—putting the city on just as sound a business basis as a well directed bank, mercantile house, or manufacturing plant. Janesville and Superior have joined the fast growing number of cities that through a simpler and more efficient system of administration, are reducing the taxes and the cost of living and at the same time multiplying the comforts, the conveniences of all citizens to say nothing of promoting industrial welfare and municipal attractiveness. Janesville and Superior have decided that every voter is entitled to vote for every officer who is to handle the affairs of the city. The sound and sensible, intelligent and business-like men of Janesville and Superior have voted for a common-sense, business administration. Rally for Janesville and Superior, Madison Next."

SPUR OF THE MOMENT

AS USUAL.

It was immense there in the shade of that primrose sylvan glade.

A summer zephyr blowing cool across the limpid fishing pool.

Made living seem to be worth while and nature was a winning smile.

The outside world of noise and heat did not affect this choice retreat.

With not a single thing to do except to dream the whole day through.

Or now and then a glance at a book. Or hang some ball upon a hook. We lolled in most delicious ease.

As independent as you please. We did not know a single care; Contentment seemed to charge the air.

It was the crowning of our wish. For just one chance to sit and fish. Unhindered by the woes of life.

And constant bickering and strife. When suddenly we heard a bull bellow through the sylvan dell.

We realized with quite a shock. 'Twas that confounded dollar clock. The sylvan dell we saw no more.

We heard a banging on our door. And this advice in caustic jerk: "Get up you chump and go to work."

ACCORDING TO UNCLE ABNER.

There are two kinds of people in this world, actors and human beings.

No fellow wants to be judged in later years by the photograph of himself taken with his high school graduating class.

There are a lot of fellows with one shirt and a $1 meat ticket that looks like a phyllopa leaf for newspapers.

Also think he takes an Antidote cure so he can live in a flat when he moves to the city.

Somebody asked Lem Higgins the other day if he knew a good law yer. He thought quite a while and finally said he didn't know a really good lawyer but he could name plenty of able ones.

No matter how much of a philanthropist a fellow is there is one thing that he don't do and that is to shovel the snow further than his own lot line.

I never yet see a barber who took any interest in any of them long-haired religions.

Lem Peters' wife says she is a woman of very few words, and Lem says that is correct, but she uses them very often.

When a fellow stops outside the house and wipes his shoes it is not so much a sign of personal neatness as it is a sign that his wife is a sufferer.

It has been said that there is an infinite variety of women but, after all, there is only one kind—those who wear false hair.

Do not judge a man too harshly because he wears a red necktie. Maybe it was given to him by an old maid aunt who is going to die some day and leave him a fortune.

Many a married man is given credit for being lame when he walks queer merely because his suspenders buttons are gone on one side.

How is it that the brightest men are always the homeliest.

Why is it that the saddest with a teaspoonful of gray matter is always the best parlor conversationalist.

Weather Forecast.

The barometric depression that was off the north Pacific coast has moved rapidly eastward and is now east of the Rocky mountains. Its center is passing over Alberta and Saskatchewan, but a trough trends southeastward down the Great Plains to Texas.

A separate center is likely to form in this trough and move across the Plains and the Lake region as a separate atmospheric disturbance. Whether it does or not, cloudiness and warmer weather, probably with light snowfalls will prevail in the north Central states tonight and Friday.

The barometer is higher than normal in the East, South and Southwest, and generally fair weather prevails there in consequence. The temperature has changed little in the past 24 hours except in the lower Lake region where it is colder. On the northern Plains where the approach of the area of low barometer from the North Pacific, with its voracious circulation has brought southerly and warmer winds. In this vicinity the weather will be cloudy with rain or snow to night and Friday. It will be warmer.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

IN THE DENTIST'S CHAIR.

The torture of the inquisition is not entirely of the past. The modern rack is the dental surgeon's chair, and about the only difference between that chair and the chair of the Spanish inquisitor is in the upholstery.

You go to your dentist for an examination or cleaning of your teeth. That dentist may be a very dear friend, but in his torture chamber he becomes your dearest foe.

"Hi! What have we here?" Thus the inquisitor. "Two fillings? We must have another appointment. How would tomorrow at 3 o'clock suit you?" It suits you like an invitation to be hanged.

You leave the presence of that heartless dentist a changed and a melancholy man. Your nerves are jangled like sweet bells out of tune. An ominous prospect—3 o'clock! It looms over on the horizon of your subconsciousness.

You climb into the hateful padded chair next day with a sort of sickly smile, or you make a ghostly joke. Adjustment of the napkin is like putting the noose about the neck of the doomed wretch ere he is to swing off.

First is a skirmish when the sniffling villain picks brutally into a bad spot—ugh!

He now begins his murderous job—the grinding out of the holes. He calls them mere "cavities," but they are holes—holes as big as tree stumps. You cower and flinch and grunt. He keeps hunting for "the place where you live." And you are "at home."

Afterward there is the hammering in of the gold with a "sledgehammer." It is a hard way to acquire riches! The reason forces the metal on you, though it is no legal tender. And his supreme contempt for your finer feelings! Really, it is unfair to thus hammer a man when he is down.

All over—except the polishing. And that, on top of the other as saults, seems a surplus, because the man is so deliriously with his ruthless wheel in the vicinity of sore and mangled gums.

Finally the agony ceases. When you rise your first impulse is to slaughter, but you desist when you remember that "faithful are the wounds of a friend." Touching the gilded place with your tongue, you feel a whole man again. And it may be a year before you suffer another martyrdom!

Why, a whole gob of optimism. After all, the world is good. You laugh a thousand times where you grunt but once.

Coasting on Dangerous

Streets.

In connection with the accident which occurred to young David Bowen today while coasting, I wish to assert that the members of the police force have tried very hard to stop coasting on the streets which intersect street car lines and especially so on South

Main Street. We have cautioned, ordered, and even clubbed the boys off from those streets, but in spite of us they have taken chances when we were out of the way. I consider it the duty of every parent or guardian to cooperate with us and give their children strict orders not to coast in those dangerous places.

THIS package guards Shurtleff's Purity Butter from infection and preserves its delicious flavor. It comes to you in all its original goodness.

WOMAN'S PAGE

HEART AND HOME TALKS
BY BARBARA BOYD

The Destroyer of the Poetry of Housekeeping.

IN a recent novel that discussed marriage, the wife who in the heroine of the story says:

"It's dirt, this everlasting, corroding dirt, that eats the poetry out of housekeeping—housekeepers, too—our bloom first, and then our hearts. Men are quick enough to see when our youth, our comeliness, or whatever it was that first attracted them, is gone; but it never occurs to them how it rusted away under their very eyes, in dirt and dishwater."

Many a woman will say "Amen!" to this, for thousands and thousands of wives, the country over, have thought it and felt it.

With a sincere desire to make a happy and a well-managed home, many a bride enthusiastically takes up the reins of housekeeping. But there is no getting away from the fact that this daily battle with dirt gradually wears off the fine edge of her spirit. Just what the outcome will be depends, of course, upon the woman.

There are two ways to control the situation. One is not to let the dirt and the dishwater get the upper hand, and to grow despondent or mournfully resigned under the burden of them, as evidently this wife does from the tone of her utterance. If there is no practical way to vanquish them, then one should meet them on the ground-floor of living, as a small part at that, should put them in their place there, attend to them when necessary, but let the spirit, when through with them, return to the upper and sunnier chambers of life.

We should not let ourselves live always on the ground-floor with the dirt and dishwater, or the poetry will indeed die out of housekeeping, and our youth and comeliness slip away. The cure in this case is a right state of mind. We need not live mentally with our dirt and dishwater. We can sweep and dust and wash the dishes, and put our mind on this work in a business-like way while doing it. But when it is done, we should betake our mind to sunnier regions.

But there is also another way to prevent the poetry slipping out of housekeeping. And that is to apply to it improved methods of work. We should make use of laundries and washing machines. We should have a vacuum cleaner. We should go in for everything possible that will eliminate drudgery, and conserve time and strength for better things.

Many will say this is impossible. But is it impossible? It is too important a question to dismiss lightly. And it is a question which the men of the home should take a hand in solving. If poetry is slipping out of housekeeping, if housekeepers feel that they are losing their youth and comeliness, and rusting out in the drudgery of the home, it is a very serious matter.

Some women object to laundries, because they are not managed properly. If this is the case, the women of a community should get together and demand a laundry that is run properly. And rest assured, what women demand is instantly enough, they will get.

If a vacuum cleaner in every home is too expensive, then a certain number of women in a community could join together, get a cleaner among them and hire a man to run it. With each one paying a small amount, this could be done.

Combination and co-operation are the watchwords of the business world, but women have not learned to bring the spirit of them into the business of their special realm.

But the poetry of housekeeping, the youth and comeliness of housekeepers, are too precious to lose. And if it seems that they are being vanquished by dirt and dishwater, we should not resignedly let them go, but rather get up and fight this enemy that seems to be driving them away.

HINTS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

An idea worth passing on is to have a large safety pin fastened to the outside of piece bags and whenever a new piece or pieces are added to it put a sample in the safety pin, so that a glance will tell what pieces are in the bag, much time will be saved in rummaging and disarranging the pieces.

It is a good plan to have silks, woolsens and cotton pieces by themselves. After washing and drying woolen blankets, beat with a carpet beater and they will renew the light and fluff look that they had when new.

Molten grease spots with cold water as soon as possible, it keeps the grease from soaking into the wood. Soda sprinkled on to grease spots with a little warm water before scrubbing aids the removing process.

Milk that is scorched need not be thrown away, but if set into cold water in a clean dish, in a short while the scorched taste will disappear.

A good way to warm rolls is to lay them in a clean cloth in a colander and place over steam on the teakettle.

Small pieces of toilet soap if kept in a glass jar, can be made into soap jelly by boiling with soft water. This jelly is a nice soap for washing the hair.

Sour milk is a good mild silver cleaner. Place the silver in the milk and let stand for an hour, then wash in hot soap suds.

If one has a small closet partitioned off in the cellar with a window for ventilation, vegetables and fruits of all kinds may be kept indefinitely. If windows are closed and are hard to open, grease the cord with a little oil and pour a little around the window frame.

If a small piece of zinc is burned in stoves and furnaces the soot will not form in the pipes or chimneys.

If blood stains get on woolen cloth, rub while fresh with a dry starch, this absorbs the blood without leaving a trace.

UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPING.

More Silver Than China.—Ways of Protecting Dining Tables.

By Alice E. Whitaker.

More and more silver is seen on the dining table, not as ornamental pieces but for use and among these are the bread tray with beaded edge, the vegetable dish with cover and the tray that serves the second purpose of a meat platter. One of the latter in Sheffield with grape border is enough to make any woman envious of its fortunate owner. Then there is the Sheffield tree platter with grooves for the meat, juice and a well from which to serve it. This kind of platter cannot be used as a tray.

"All very nice, but who can keep so much silver bright?" remarks the woman who always hides her prettiest pieces away in cotton flannel bags. She does not realize that silver in use keeps brighter longer than that which stands idly on the side board or is locked in the strong box. Good plate will last for years even if in constant use and if it wears thin it can be re-plated. Fine china is not lasting and there is no remedy for breakage. It is indeed a sensible fashion to use more silver.

It is always a problem how to keep the top of a dining table unspotted unless it has a hard wax finish. A highly polished table or one with any sort of a varnish finish, is a constant source of worry. There are various devices for keeping hot dishes raised from the table but none are sure to protect unless there is a little air space underneath.

The straw mats that come in sets of three for ten cents and the raffia and willow mats are all better than a solid tile resting on the wood. A tile with little feet is best for very hot dishes and for tea and coffee pots but is not commonly found.

Asbestos mats come in all shapes and sizes from the smallest at ten cents to one that fits the whole top of the dining table, with sections to fit the extra leaves that they may be put in, and which costs from four to five dollars. Cakes are made for the smallest mats but it is less trouble to lay a plain square or round doily over them when in use.

When a table has a hard finish it may be wiped over with a cloth wrung from cold water and then with any good wax finish, remembering to rub with the grain of the wood.

Prevention is easier than cure but if the mischief is done to a polished table then it is wiser to have the top re-dressed by an expert than to experiment with dressings perhaps to make the matter worse.

There are some liquid polishes on the market that do wonderful work in restoring marred and spotted furniture and in taking the bloom from pianos and other polished surfaces.

But a few years ago women were working natural colored flowers and leaves on white linen centerpieces, which they knew well enough would be ruined except by the most careful

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

"To be truly happy is a question of how we begin and not of how we end. OF WHAT WE WANT AND NOT OF WHAT WE HAVE. An aspiration is a joy forever, a possession as solid as a landed estate, a fortune which we can never exhaust and which gives up, year by year, a revenue of pleasurable activity."

—Robert Louis Stevenson.

THE daughter of one of the wealthiest men in our town has recently been married. Her father's wedding gift to her was a house completely furnished. The house stands on the edge of a fine lawn. It is a beautiful big building with wide verandas, open fireplaces, and a splendid vista. It is finished in rich natural woods and it is furnished complete, even to the minutest detail. Hangings, rugs, ornaments, all the little minutiae of utility and service that most people acquire gradually through years of married life, were absolutely complete in that house, the day the owner stepped into it as a bride.

By most of the young girls in the neighborhood this bride is considered quite the most fortunate girl who ever was married. From this opinion I most respectfully, but none the less firmly, beg to differ. Why, I think the poor little girl is positively pathetic. And I think her father, though undoubtedly he meant to be the kindest and most generous of fathers, has really robbed her of vast possibilities of happiness.

Don't you pity her, you people who have known all the joy of gradual home building, all the interest of planning and waiting and contriving, and all the satisfaction of acquisition made a hundred fold keener by the delay?

Why, just think, she'll never have the unqualified delight that you know when, after waiting and longing for it for years, you bought that beautiful mahogany bookcase. To be sure that bookcase didn't cost an enormous sum, but it was hers. And yet it probably brought you much as one of the armchairs in her library. And yet it probably brought you more pleasure than her whole library gives her.

And how can she ever experience the excitement and elation which possessed you, when you found that the particular Oriental rug you had admired for years, had actually been marked down within your means. To be sure every room in her house is lavishly strewn with far more costly rugs, but what of that? Do they bring her half the joy the acquisition of that one brought to you?

What chance will she ever get to feel as happy as you did the Christmas that all your family chubbied together and bought you a good table for your living room and made it possible for you to get rid of the cheap and ugly makeshift you had used so long?

Hungry, they say, is the very best of sauces. Who has never tasted food thus seasoned does not know what a real feast is.

Now, planning and longing and contriving are equally good sauces for the meal of acquisition.

In my mind, the young people who start out with the necessities and a few of the luxuries, are far better off than the young folks who have almost everything the heart could desire right off at the beginning.

Every little thing they acquire will be beautiful and glorified by longing and waiting, and perhaps by the sacrifices made to obtain it. Every humble piece of household furniture will have a meaning and a history. Thought and love will be the interior decorators of such a home, and will gradually make it that wonderful thing which is as different from a mere house as from a city hall—a home.

Poor, little, rich girl who has been robbed of all the joys of home building. Aren't you sorry for her? I am.

laundrying. Many of them also know these embroidery stitches were more proper put in a frame under glass than on the table.

China painters followed the same style as the needle worker and decorated their porcelain with the same naturalistic designs. But fashions change and the centerpieces, or between meal mats, are now all in white or they may be of solid blue, green or can then be embroidered with white in conventional figures or they may be stenciled. Following the same idea china shows simple designs and lustre grounds that go well with the linens.

Facing a Famine. An untimely biting frost effectually completed the mischief done earlier by the insect enemies of Mr. Barden's potatoes. The tops of the plants, which had served as pasturage for the pests, were entirely destroyed, and with them Mr. Barden's hopes of a crop. He was not selfish, however, and could think of others in the hour of adversity. Going to town in the afternoon, he was accosted at the post office by James Hayes, an intimate acquaintance. "Hello, Gles! How's everything up to the corners?" "Trouble enough, Jim. Trouble enough!" was the gloomy response. "Ten million later bugs, and nothing for 'em to eat!"—Youth's Companion.

She Couldn't Say. A little boy out in Stockton, according to the Rocks County Record, said to his mother the other day: "Ma, am I a descendant from a monkey?" "I don't know," replied the mother. "I never knew any of your father's folks." The father, who was listening, went out in the coal shed and kicked the cat through the roof.—Kansas City Star.

FAT IN THE DIET.

Experiments recently made at the Storrs experiment station show that when calves are fed on milk containing a low percentage of fat they do better than on a milk especially rich in fat. The supposition that a certain amount of fat is necessary or beneficial under all circumstances in the daily ration is not correct. Animals do very well without any fat. The liver can produce fat from the starch. The tendency is to use too much animal fat, in the form of lard and other animal products, which, with insufficient mastication, often seriously interferes with digestion by coating the stomach and thus preventing the access of saliva.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

THE STAR CHAMBER COURT.

By A. W. MACY.

At one time the "Star Chamber" was almost all-powerful in England. It was so called because its sessions were held in a large chamber whose ceiling was decorated with stars. Its sessions were held in secret. It could settle cases without juries and inflict torture at will, though it could not impose the death penalty. This court fined the bishop of Lincoln £5,000 for calling Archbishop Laud "the great Leviathan." It fined John Lilburne, the agitator, £500, sentenced him to the pillory, and to be whipped "from Fleet street to Westminster." The court was abolished by act of parliament in 1641. "Star Chamber" proceedings of any kind have never been popular in America.

Before Allowing an Operation

Please Read These Two Letters.

The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock will prove how unwieldy it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when it may be avoided by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in the hospital and came home suffering worse than before. Then after all that suffering Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored her health.

HERE IS HER OWN STATEMENT.

Paw Paw, Mich.—"Two years ago I suffered very severely with a displacement—I could not be on my feet for a long time. My physician treated me for several months without much relief, and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did. Today I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise every woman who is afflicted with any female complaint to try it."—Mrs. Orville Rock, R. R. No. 5, Paw Paw, Mich.

"THERE NEVER WAS A WORSE CASE."

Rockport, Ind.—"There never was a worse case of women's ills than mine, and I cannot begin to tell you what I suffered. For over two years I was not able to do anything. I was in bed for a month and the doctor said nothing but an operation would cure me. My father suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so to please him I took it, and I improved wonderfully, so I am able to travel, ride horseback, take long rides and never feel any ill effects from it. I can only ask other suffering women to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation."—Mrs. Margaret Menzies, R. F. D. No. 3, Rockport, Ind.

We will pay a handsome reward to any person who will prove to us that these letters are not genuine and truthful—or that either of these women were paid in any way for their testimonials, or that the original letter from each did not come to us entirely unsolicited.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine, made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health.

Write to LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO., (CONFIDENTIAL) LYNN, MASS., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Thought for Today
BY MRS. ROBERT M. LAFOLETTE.

CHILDREN IN WASHINGTON.

DID YOU ever see a kid who has a home somewhere else who likes Washington? I heard a boy from the Middle West ask one from the Pacific Slope. "Of course not!" was the scornful answer. Yet why not? Washington has miles and miles of asphalt pavement, fountains, roller-skating and bicycling. There are historic sights in all directions, and there is entertainment and meat life a plenty for children as well as grown-ups in Washington.

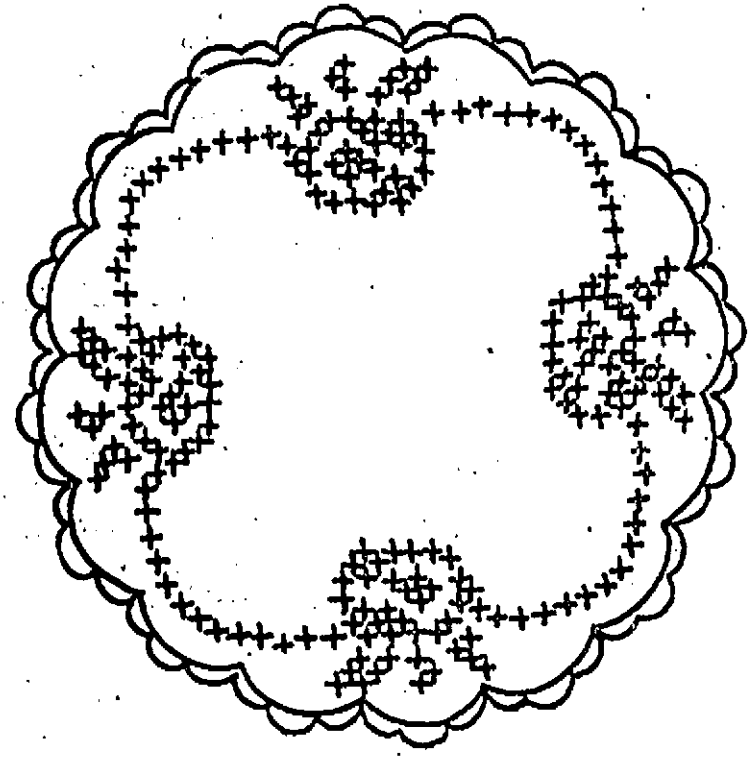

But it is not home. Those precious associations so dear to children are wanting. Not many apartment houses take children. Those who rent furnished houses prefer tenants without them. For a Congressman to furnish a house for a two-year term is a large undertaking if not too great an expense. A hotel, a boarding house? Alas, poor children!

Then there is the children's school. Congress begins in December. Every other year it adjourns the fourth of March—barring extra session. Shall the family life conform to the children's school, or the children's school to the family life?

Then the father's intense absorption in politics, the mother's social obligations, make the Washington atmosphere rather exciting for children who are interested in it, rather dreary for those who are not.

What shall be done? Shall the mother stay at home with the growing children, shall they be put in boarding school, or shall the family be kept together, sharing the advantages and disadvantages of life at the capital, getting out of it at least a common family experience?

Each family settles the question for itself. Sometimes from expediency, sometimes from necessity, always with the idea that it is temporary. Yet how much of daily happiness, how much of experience, influence and recollections precious to the life of both parents and children is involved in the decision.

CROSS STITCH DOILY.

A set of cross-stitch doilies makes a charming gift. The doilies are padded and closely buttonholed. The stitches which form the decoration are worked first, and then crossed by those which stand in the opposite direction, working from left to right. This Will Stop Your Cough in a Hurry
Have 22 by Making This Cough Syrup at Home.

This recipe makes a pint of better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.00. A few drops usually counter the most obstinate cough—stops even whooping cough quickly. Simple as it is, no better remedy can be had at any price.
Mix one pint of granulated sugar with 1/2 pint of warm water, and stir for 15 minutes. Put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (fifty cents) in a pint bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. It has a pleasant taste and lasts a family a long time. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.
You can feel this take hold of a cough in a day. This is a true fact. It has a good tonic effect, braces up the appetite, and is slightly laxative, too, which is helpful. A handy remedy for hoarseness, croup, bronchitis, asthma and all throat and lung troubles.
The effect of pinex on the membrane is well known. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norwegian white pine extract, and is rich in quinine and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.
This Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe has obtained great popularity throughout the United States and Canada. It has often been imitated, though never successfully. A genuine, though never successfully, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

TIED RUN-DOWN PEOPLE
A North Carolina Man Suggests a Remedy
Greensboro, N. C.—"For a long time I was so run-down and debilitated that I could hardly drag around. My appetite was poor and I could not sleep nights. I had tried different so-called tonics without benefit. I was advised to try your cod liver and iron tonic, Vinol, and I am so glad I did. It gave me a hearty appetite, I soon commenced to sleep soundly, and I feel strong, well and more active than I have for years. Every run-down or debilitated person should just give Vinol a trial." K. Allbrook.
What Vinol did for Mr. Allbrook it will do for every weak, run-down or debilitated person in this vicinity. To show our faith we will furnish the medicine free if it does not do as we claim. Come in and get a bottle on these terms.

REAR END COLLISION DESTROYS TWO CARS
WRECKAGE TAKES FIRE

EXTRA FROM FOND DU LAC RUNS INTO GAS HOUSE.
Accident Happened at One O'clock Last Night—Trainmen Jump to Safety as Engine Demolishes Cars.
Two cars were smashed to kindling wood and several trainmen on the C. & N. W. escaped with their lives by jumping down an embankment when an extra from Fond du Lac ran into the rear end of the regular freight No. 84 standing on the track opposite the gas house between N. Bluff and N. Main streets, last night about one o'clock. The engine on the extra which was running about fifteen miles an hour was badly battered and the remains of a caboose and a loaded freight car were strewn over the track and embankment for several rods. The engine, thrown and brakedman of the extra all jumped before the crash and Conductor Anna who was the sole occupant of the wrecked caboose was thrown out of the car unhurt.
As the engine plowed through the caboose and into the freight car which was loaded with fence posts it set them on fire and the wreck was soon a mass of flames. The fire department was immediately called out and after a little difficulty in getting the hydrant to work extinguished the blaze.
Although the track is on the high embankment and crosses several streets near the place on viaducts the crew on the extra jumped as soon as they saw the full lights of the regular. Engineer Underland was on one of the street viaducts and was quickly followed by Fireman Satchell and Brakeman Broder who made flying leaps onto the bank just past bluff street. Although the caboose was literally smashed to splinters of wood and iron, Conductor Anna was thrown out through the wreckage he was unhurt except for a few bruises and cuts and a severe jolting up. There being but one occupant of the car at the time no fatalities which might otherwise have been almost certain, occurred and Mr. Anna will soon be over the effects of the terrible experience.
People who happened to be awake in the city were able to hear the crash when the engine struck and the flames of the burning wreckage were easily visible in all parts of the city. A carload of fence posts covers the embankment on one side mixed with the debris of the demolished cars while the other side of the track is also covered with the charred remains of the caboose and its furnishings. The front of the engine No. 125 was smashed in and the sides were pretty badly battered by the force of the collision.
This is the third wreck which has happened within six miles of the city within a few weeks all three having been freight trains. A head-on collision just this side of Afton, a short time ago was followed by a derailment in which three cars were demolished just south of the city. The first and the last one were caused by some mistake on the part of the crew while the second was one of those accidents which cannot be foretold. A narrow escape from a passenger wreck occurred the other night when the Chicago train engine No. 1021 dropped a broken ransom beam on the track while going at a rate of fifty miles an hour.

ANNUAL REPORT OF KIMBALL MISSION

Large Amount of Charity Work Done By Miss Mary Kimball, City Missionary, During Past Year.
In the annual report of the Mary Kimball Mission, Miss Kimball outlines the work which has been done in the city during the past year for the aid of the poor and needy. The report is as follows:
Garnett furnished the needy, 1,800; cloth furnished for two pairs of boys' pants; families furnished with food, 13; bed quilts, 2; a large number of dishes, stirring spoons, knives and forks, tea spoons, jars, tin, pails, pans and other kitchen and cooking utensils; mattresses and springs; a bed and springs; a quantity of toys. Number of letters written, 104; post cards written, 8; magazines distributed, 58.
"On account" of personal illness I have been unable to visit but very little in the homes. I am, at this time, suffering from injuries sustained by a fall on Friday last. I have been able to do but little work of any kind for two years, and regret exceedingly that I can do so little when there is so much that needs to be done. I would ask the friends of the Mission to continue sending clothing of all kinds, literature, and whatever you can spare, to God's needy ones. There is much suffering in our city today, and the demand for all kinds of clothing far exceeds the supply.
MARY KIMBALL, City Missionary.

The PHANTOM OF THE OPERA

By Gaston Leroux

Author of
THE MYSTERY OF THE YELLOW RACE and THE MYSTERY OF THE LADY IN BLACK
Illustrations by M. G. Kettner
Copyright 1911 by The Bobbs-Merrill Company

"I did not protest, first, because I dislike scandal, and, second, because I thought that your predecessor, MM. Deblenne and Poligny, who were always charming to me, had neglected, before leaving, to mention my little fad to you. I have now received a reply from those gentlemen to my letter asking for an explanation, and this reply proves that you know all about my memorandum-book and, consequently, that you are treating me with outrageous contempt. If you wish to live in peace, you must not begin by taking away my private box.

"Believe me to be, dear Mr. Manager, without prejudice to these little observations,

"Your Most Humble and Obedient Servant,

"OPERA GHOST."

The letter was accompanied by a cutting from the agony-column of the Revue Theatrale, which ran:

"O. G.—There is no excuse for it, and M. We told them and left your memorandum-book in their hands. Kind regards."

M. Firmin Richard had hardly finished reading this letter when M. Armand Moncharmin entered, carrying one exactly similar. They looked at each other and burst out laughing.

"They are keeping out the joke," said M. Richard, "but I don't call it funny."

"What does it all mean?" asked M. Moncharmin. "Do they imagine that, because they have been managers of the opera, we are going to let them have a box for an indefinite period?"

"I am not in the mood to let myself be laughed at long," said Firmin Richard.

"It's harmless enough," observed Armand Moncharmin. "What is it they really want? A box for tonight?"

M. Firmin Richard told his secretary to send Box Five on the grand tier to MM. Deblenne and Poligny. If it was not sold, it was not. It was sent off to them. Deblenne lived at the corner of the Rue Scribe and the Boulevard des Capucines; Poligny, in the Rue Aubert. O. Ghost's two letters had been posted at the Boulevard des Capucines postoffice, as Moncharmin remarked after examining the envelopes.

"You see?" said Richard.

They shrugged their shoulders and

"Well, my dear fellow, these two are mad with jealousy! To think that they went to the expense of an advertisement in the Revue Theatrale! Have they nothing better to do?"

"By the way," said Moncharmin, "they seem to be greatly interested in that little Christine Daae!"

"You know as well as I do that she has the reputation of being quite good," said Richard.

"Reputations are easily obtained," replied Moncharmin. "Haven't I a reputation for knowing all about music? And I don't know one key from another."

"Don't be afraid; you never had that reputation," Richard declared. "Thereupon he ordered the artists to be shown in, who, for the last two hours, had been walking up and down outside the door behind which fame and fortune—or disaster—awaited them."

The whole day was spent in discussing, negotiating, signing or cancelling contracts; and the two over-worked managers went to bed early, without so much as casting a glance at Box Five to see whether M. Deblenne and M. Poligny were enjoying the performance.

Next morning, the managers received a cord of thanks from the ghost:

"Dear Mr. Manager:

"Thanks. Charming evening. Daae exquisite. Choruses well sung up. Carlotta a splendid commonplace instrument. Will write you soon for the 240,000 francs, or 233,421 fr. 70 c. to be correct. MM. Deblenne and Poligny have sent me the 6,675 fr. 30 c. representing the first ten days of my allowance for the current year; their privileges finished on the evening of the tenth inst.

"Kind regards,

"On the other hand, there was a letter from MM. Deblenne and Poligny: 'Gentlemen:

"We are much obliged for your kind thought of us, but you will easily understand that the prospect of again

"I'll Tell You What Happened. The Ghost Was Annoyed Again."

hearing Faust, pleasant though it is to ex-managers of the opera, cannot make us forget that we have no right to occupy Box Five on the grand tier, which is the exclusive property of him of whom we spoke to you when we went through the memorandum-book with you for the last time. See Clause 58, final paragraph.

"Accept, gentlemen, etc."

"Oh, those fellows are beginning to annoy me!" shouted Firmin Richard, snatching up the letter.

And that evening Box Five was sold.

The next morning, MM. Richard and Moncharmin, on reaching their office, found an inspector's report relating to an incident that had happened, the night before, in Box Five. I give the essential part of the report:

"I was obliged to call in a municipal guard twice, this evening, to clear Box Five on the grand tier, once at the beginning and once in the middle of the second act. The occupants, who arrived as the curtain rose on the second act, created a regular scandal by their laughter and their ridiculous observations. There were cries of 'Hush!' all around them and the whole house was beginning to protest, when the box-keeper came to fetch me. I entered the box and said what I thought necessary. The people did not seem to me to be in their right mind; and they made stupid remarks. I said that, if the noise was repeated, I should be compelled to clear the box. The moment I left I heard the laughing again, with fresh protests from the house. I returned with a municipal guard, who turned them out. They protested, still laughing, saying they would not go unless they had their money back. At last, they became quiet and I allowed them to enter the box again. The laughter at once recommenced; and, this time, I had them turned out definitely."

"Send for the inspector," said Richard to his secretary, who had already read the report and marked it with blue pencil.

M. Potell, the secretary, had foreseen the order and called the inspector at once.

"Tell us what happened," said Richard bluntly.

The inspector began to splutter and referred to the report.

"Well, but what were those people laughing at?" asked Moncharmin.

"They must have been dining, sir, and seemed more inclined to lark about than to listen to good music. The moment they entered the box they came out again and called the box-keeper, who asked them what they wanted. They said, 'Look in the box; there's no one there, is there?'"

"No," said the woman. "Well, is there?"

"No," said the woman. "Well, is there?"

"No," said the woman. "Well, is there?"

"No," said the woman. "Well, is there?"

"No," said the woman. "Well, is there?"

"No," said the woman. "Well, is there?"

"No," said the woman. "Well, is there?"

count or any one who has not seen him!" explained the manager. "As he seems to be everywhere, I can't have people telling me that they see him nowhere. I like people to work for me when I employ them!"

Having said this, M. Richard paid no attention to the inspector and discussed various matters of business with his acting-manager, who had entered the room meanwhile. The inspector thought he could go and was gently—oh, so gently!—adding toward the door, when M. Richard called the man to the floor with a thundering:

"Stay where you are!"

M. Henry had sent for the box-keeper to the Rue de Provence, close to the opera, where she was engaged as a portress. She soon made her appearance.

"What's your name?"

"Mame Giry. You know me well enough, sir; I'm the mother of little Giry, Little Meg, what?"

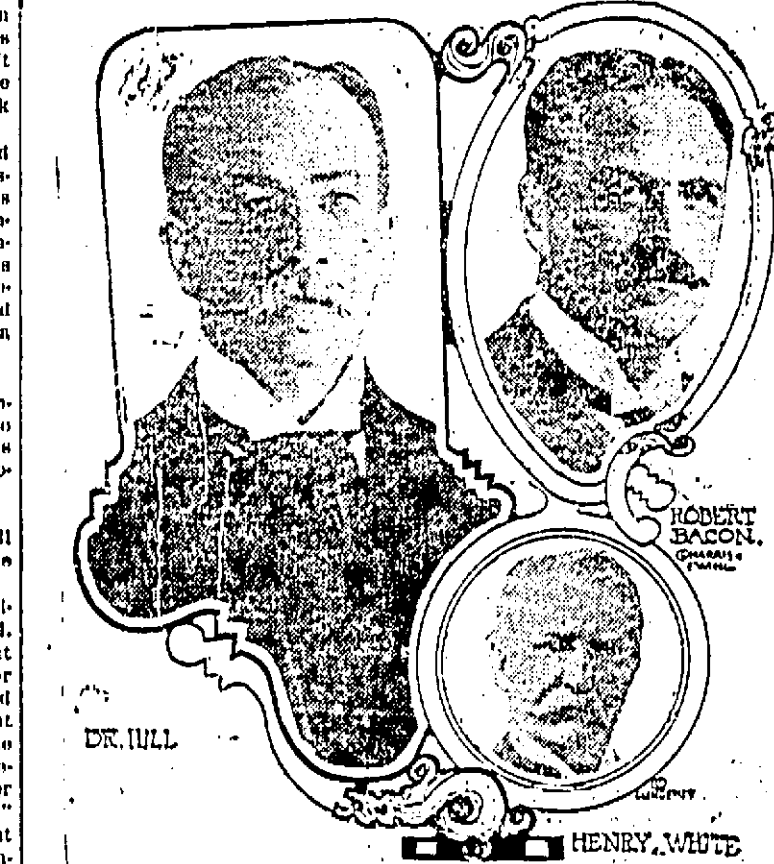

This was said in so rough and solemn a tone that, for a moment, M. Richard was impressed. He looked at Mame Giry, in her faded shawl, her worn shoes, her old tattered dress and dingy bonnet. It was quite evident from the manager's attitude, that he either did not know or could not remember having met Mame Giry, nor even little Giry, nor even "Little Meg."

But Mame Giry's pride was so great that the celebrated box-keeper insisted that everybody knew her.

"Never heard of her!" the manager declared. "But that's no reason, Mame Giry, why I shouldn't ask you what happened last night to make you and the inspector call in a municipal guard."

SHAKE IN DIPLOMATIC SERVICE.

Another shake up in diplomatic circles is due, owing to the resignation of Robert Bacon as Ambassador to France. Bacon's resignation is on its way to America and is reported due to the fact that he is entirely out of sympathy with the administration and can see no chance for advancement to the English court, which has been his ambition.

Little Raymond's Plan.

Little Raymond was fond of tomatoes. His mother always insisted that he not ask for a second helping, especially when there were strangers present. One day the family had a young man as a dinner guest and he and the small boy of the family got real chummy before dinner. Along about dinner time Raymond cornered the young man and said, in a whisper: "Say, do you like tomatoes?" The young man thought that was a strange question, but he smilingly admitted that he was not overfond of them. "Well, you sit next to me at the table and don't tell mamma that you don't like 'em. Then when I eat mine I'll just reach over and take yours."

Sound Philosophy.

A correspondent of the Portland, Mass., Times asserts: "Men are like hogs—the more brass they contain, the further you can hear them. Women are like tulips—the more modest and retiring they appear, the better you love them." There is some truth, we think, in that.

CARELESS IN APPENDICITIS IN JANESVILLE

Many Janesville people have stomach or bowel trouble which is likely to turn into appendicitis. If you have constipation, sour stomach, or gas on the stomach, try simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as compounded in Aletris, the new German appendicitis remedy. J. P. Baker, Druggist, states that a SINGLE DOSE of this simple remedy relieves bowel or stomach trouble almost INSTANTLY.

The MUNSEY For February

A Vitally Illuminating Article On A
Criminally Corrupt Condition
In The Republican Party.
By Judson C. Welliver

Paradoxical as it may seem, half the votes necessary to control the Republican party in the next national convention represent the political machines of eleven states, no one of which has cast an electoral vote for a Republican presidential candidate for 36 years. The charge is made that these machines live through the grace and patronage of the Republican administration, and that the alliance is vicious and corrupt. Mr. Welliver presents evidence of vital interest to voters of every party.

Newest Novel

The Hollow
of Her Hand

starts serially
in this number

"If you have read 'Graustark,' 'Beverly of Graustark,' 'Truxton King' and the other powerful stories of McCutcheon you know what to expect in his new serial, 'The Hollow of Her Hand,' the most fascinating of all McCutcheon's stories. It deals with the mysterious death of a rich New Yorker. He has been murdered, apparently, by a woman, but the perpetrator of the deed has disappeared without leaving a clue. The story develops through complications of growing emotional intensity to a most dramatic climax."

regretted that two men of that age should amuse themselves with such childish tricks.

"They might have been civil, for all that!" said Moncharmin. "Did you notice how they treat us with regard to Carlotta, Merrill and Little Raymond?"

hearing Faust, pleasant though it is to ex-managers of the opera, cannot make us forget that we have no right to occupy Box Five on the grand tier, which is the exclusive property of him of whom we spoke to you when we went through the memorandum-book with you for the last time. See Clause 58, final paragraph.

"Oh, those fellows are beginning to annoy me!" shouted Firmin Richard, snatching up the letter.

And that evening Box Five was sold.

A LITTLE BIT HUMOROUS

The Scapegoat.
"You say the boy's maternal grandfather was a highwayman?"
"Yes."
"And his paternal grandfather was charged with arson?"
"Yes."
"And his aunt is a shoplifter, and his uncle a counterfeiter?"
"Yes."
"Then to what do you ascribe his waywardness?"
"Why, to moving pictures, or course."

APPLY TO THE CASHIER.

A timid knock, a grunt "Come in!" and the tear stained, now office boy stood before the manager.
"P—please, sir!" he blubbered.
The manager looked up sharply.
"P—please, sir!" he blubbered again.
"Well, well," asked the manager, "what is it?"
"P—please, sir, I upset a p—packet of envelopes," said the office boy, dabbing his streaming eyes with his coat sleeve, "and the c—cashier k—kicked me!"

"Good gracious, my lad!" snapped the manager irritably. "You don't expect me to attend personally to every detail of business, do you?"—Answers.

Consistent.

"Was that entertainment what you'd call a consistent place of work?"

"It was," replied the theater manager. "The scene was located on a mythical island and we played to mythical audiences and drew mythical salaries."

POOR FIDO.

Little Elsie—Oh! take me up, mother, it's too muddy.
Mother—Walk across, that's a good girl; mother has all she can do to carry poor Fido.

A HOT ONE.

Katherine—I would rather be beautiful than wise.
Kiddie—You've played in hard luck all around.

Very Probable.
No doubt the good Lord takes a quitter; And also the Promiscuous splitter.

Serious Part Begins.

Jack—Well, old man, she has accepted me and named the day. That's a load off my heart.
Maarled Friend—Yes; now the load is on your shoulders.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

DIOGENES

By HOWARD L. RANN.

DIOGENES was a college professor who has recuperated through history, accompanied by a pleasing woodcut, as the inventor of the practical joke and the tubular lantern. He was chiefly distinguished for having a keen sense of humor, being the only college professor extant or extinct who was over accused of concealing any of that commodity about his person. Diogenes is said to have been the author of two of our most side-splitting jokes—spitting the boat and pulling a chair out from under a stout party, and this seemed him to all with whom he came in contact.

When Diogenes got to the stage, when nobody but a hellstone angel would accept him as an insurable risk, he bit off an allotment of stock in an uplift magazine and lost his home and a new safety bicycle, which embittered him to such an extent that he turned around and asked a number of confiding friends and relatives by selling them the patent rights to his lantern. As this was the same lantern with which Mrs. O'Leary's cow kindled the Chicago fire, a few years later, it will be seen that Diogenes did not strengthen his standing in the church to any great extent. Diogenes never married any body, and history relates that this was due to a fear that the marriage certificate would turn out to be an assignment of stock in some enterprise guaranteeing 60 per cent dividends. He was passionately fond of music and after making a popular hit as slide trombone in the opera house orchestra was snogged by a wealthy family as tutor. Diogenes died at a ripe old age, without being interrupted by anybody, bequeathing a choice collection of fireproof judgements and most of the jokes now in use on the vaudeville stage.

Much Easier.

"My wife decided to do some preserving today and I left her performing the feat of a daring swimmer."
"What might that be?"
"Stunning the current."

FORTY YEARS AGO

Forty years ago... The Janesville Gazette, Jan. 25, 1872. The amount of logs already stacked on the Peshigo and Menominee rivers, will not vary much from 65,000,000 feet, or about one-third of the amount intended to be put in this season.

The fresh snow drifted so badly that trains from Baraboo to Madison were five hours behind time and from Portage are not in yet.

The North-Western Railroad Company have moved their new depot at Madison so that passengers have to be transferred between that and the Milwaukee and Prairie du Chien road in Oshkosh.

A bill was introduced into the senate today to build an iron fence around the capitol at a cost not to exceed $40,000. Senator Walker introduced a bill permitting scholars from the high schools be admitted free to the State University.

We visited the house of Hiram Merrill on Jackson street, in the First ward, this afternoon for the purpose of witnessing the operation of one of Cronk, Haviland and Antide's new steam house heaters, which has been used by Mr. Merrill during the winter. The steamer is placed in the collar, encircling but little room, and from thence the steam is communicated to three coils of iron pipe (each coil containing four hundred feet) located just beneath the floors of the lower rooms. The heated air is drawn into the rooms above through registers and permitted to communicate with any portion of the house by keeping the doors open. It was manufactured

UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher

Copyright, 1909, by George Matthews Adams BY WALT MASON

I loafed around the neighborhood and talked about the Larger Good. I talked of measures which would keep the nation from the garbage heap. I pointed out the fatal flaws in most of our existing laws, which would contribute to the Larger Good.

Good. And old Bill Wex, who lives next door, to whom I have referred before, who doesn't seem to care a cent about the country's government, who has no high thought in his block, cleaned all the snowdrifts from his lawn, and on the few some ashew throw, and people praised it, then, and said he was the best of men. And I, who have for years stood whooping for the Larger Good, have got no credit at the store, and folks insist that I'm a bore. It simply shows how low and base and trifling is the human race.
